

3 STEPS

Keep Your Company's Finances Secure

Criminals may attempt to misdirect payments by sending emails that appear authentic. Such emails may claim that the company's bank account details have changed, or provide false bank details for payments to suppliers. It is crucial to exercise caution and verify any new payment details through a trusted source, such as a known phone number provided by the company, before making payments.

1

PAUSE

Don't fall victim to rush tactics or unexpected demands. Take a moment to pause and evaluate before making payments or responding.

2

QUESTION

Don't trust emails blindly, verify their authenticity. Always double check with the sender on a trusted number before taking any action on requests.

3

PROTECT

Implement robust internal verification processes for payments. Protect yourself and your organization against potential fraud.
